

Your iSeries does play well with others.

Seriously.

Streamlining your business by automating transactions with your customers, vendors and partners will dramatically reduce costs. This requires Web and Application-to-Application integration with your existing iSeries applications.

LANSA's software allows you to easily integrate your legacy iSeries systems with those of your trading partners, no matter what platform or applications they use. With LANSA you can leverage the power of new technologies to drive real business value. Seriously.

Whether you're building applications from the ground up or extending existing systems, LANSA's Application Development solutions incorporate the latest technologies including Java, XML and Wireless.

LANSA's e-Business Solutions allow organizations to extend current systems to trading partners and customers through the Web — resulting in rapidly implemented business solutions that help reduce costs and improve customer service.

LANSA's Technology Integration & Data Access solutions enable your current systems to "talk to" your trading partners and customers existing systems regardless of platform, technology and devices.

LANSA helps organizations become more efficient and productive through the use of technology. LANSA supports IBM iSeries (AS/400), Windows, UNIX and Linux platforms.
